REV. PROUDFIT NEW MODERATOR OF PRESBYTERY

Local Pastor Elected Head of the Redstone District.

EIGHTY AT THE FIRST SESSION

Forty Elders and 40 Pastors Present When Meeting Opens; Rev. Wilson H. Sloan Chosen Stated Clerk; Rev. George P. Wilson Preaches Sermon.

At the session of the Redstone Presbytery held in the First Presbyterian Church here this morning, Rev. J. L. Proudfit of the local church was elected moderator for one year. Rev. Proudfit immediately took charge of the session and will preside at all the remaining meetings.

The assembly, attended by 40 pastors and as many more elders, opened at 10 o'clock with a splendid sermon by Rev. George P. Wilson of Fayette City, the retiring moderator. Immediately after this the elections took place. Rev. Proudfit was chosen moderator, and Rev. Wilson H. Sloan stated clerk for a three year term.

An act calling for much comment was Rev J. B. Reed's presentation of his resignation. Rev. Reed has served the congregation at Laurel Hill for 28 years. He will preach his last sermon on October 29, since his resignation was accepted after complimentary remarks from many members of the presbytery. Rev. Reed was made pastor emeritus and moderator of his church session.

The Masontown church having called Rev. Maxwell Cornelius, formerly of the Butler Presbytery, and Rev. Cornelius having accepted the call, a committee was appointed to install him.

After dinner, which was served in the basement of the church by the Presbyterian ladis, the delegates gathred at 2 o'clock to hear the report of the executive committee and transact more routine business. The afternoon session will be adjourned at 5:30 and the evening meeting will begin at 7:30 o'clock. Indications are that all business will be completed at the evening session, and that there will be no assembly tomorrow.

Ministers attending the sessions are: John B. Reed, Laurel Hill; Perrin Baker, Belle Vernon; George P. Wilson, Little Redstone; George S. Hackett, Fayette City; John W. Wilson, Dunbar; Charles E. Edwards; Robert C. Van Eman, Hopewell; Edwin M. Bowman, Brownsville First; Harry C. Calhoun, Round Hill; Francis A. Kerns, Youngwood; Charles R. Harmon, Brownsville Central; Robert A. Kirk, McKeesport Central; Henry E. Snyder, Pleasant Unity; A. L. Medcalf, Sewickley; James A. Liggett, West Newton; W. Scott Bowman, Uniontown Second; A. T. Carr, Muddy Creek; James E. Hutchison, Scottdale; Wilson H. Sloan, Leisenring; U. Crawford White, East Liberty; Clark D. A. Hoon, Fairchance; William H. Brown, Sutersville; John H. Moore, New Providence; Herbert Q. McDonald, Monessen; Walter G. Ramage, Rehoboth; Edwin D. Bevier; Harvey W. Kilgore, Long Run; J. Edwin Hartman, Mount Pleasant Reunion; Leon Stewart, McKeesport First; Merle P. Steele, Pleasant View; Robert J. Shields, Dunlap's Creek; Ernest B. Lawrence, Carmichaels; Rufus D. Wingert, East McKeesport; M. B. Houck; Alex P. Kelso, Mount Pleasant; Walter B. Purnell, Dawson; Paul H. Elliott, Smithfield, and Maxwell Cornelius.

Elders attending are: S. E. Harris, Laurel Hill; T. P. Grant, Belle Vernon; C. W. McCann, Uniontown Third; William Snyder, Glassport; J. B. Hazen, Little Redstone; J. C. Fulton, Uniontown First; H. E. Pierce, Brownsville First; W. M. Steele, Youngwood; John M. Springer, Brownsville Central; R. L. McCartney, McKeesport Central; Thomas L. Robertson, West Newton; H. D. Core, Uniontown Second; A. J. Stephens, Muddy Creek; A. D. Oberly, Scottdale; Z. T. Leighty, Leisenring; Daniel Leighty, East Liberty; E. T. Griffith, Fairchance; John S. Coovel, Mount Vernon; L. W. Wolfe, Connellsville; F. G. Husten, New Providence; J. A. McGowan, Monessen; John Webster, Webster; M. M. Wilson, Rehoboth; S. C. Stevenson, Mount Pleasant Reunion; S. P. McRea, McKeesport First; N. E. Conway, Dunlap's Creek; S. Bruntine, Carmichaels; C. C. Steiner, East McKeesport; James Masser, Dawson; M. B. Gault, Tyrone; George Brown, Smithfield; M. F. Francis, Grace Chapel; C. H. Cox, Masontown; Samuel Campbell, New Salem; James Kramer, Greensboro; G. F. Griffin, Old Frame; John C. Martin, Franklin and W. L. Kemp, Mount Washington. C. E. Harris and H. F. Junk are commissioners from Laurel Hill.

ONION BEDS BURN.

Ohio State Guard Asked to Help Put Out Flames.

By Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 25.—Request that the state militia be called out immediately to fight extensive fires in what are said to be the world's largest onion beds at McCuffey, near Kenton, O., were received by Governor Willis' office today.

It was stated that the vegetable decay of several inches in the beds was burning, causing a large loss.

FIRE TRUCK HAS NARROW ESCAPE

It Barely Misses Being Struck by a Pennsylvania Passenger Train on Pittsburg Street.

While responding to an alarm from Box 152, at Connell avenue and Third street yesterday morning, Truck No. 1 had a narrow escape when it dashed across Pittsburg street in front of the engine of the 10.10 Southwest passenger train. The engine was coming to a stop, however, and the fire truck whizzed past without harm.

As the firemen on the truck came within view of the crossing, they saw the train pulling in. The firemen figured that a collision was inevitable. There was no time to stop, so the truck went on. As they cleared the tracks the occupants of the truck saw to their relief that the engine had stopped.

The incident further emphasizes the need of safety gates or warning signals at Connellsville's many grade crossings. Had it been a freight train, the fire truck could hardly have escaped destruction with possible injury to the occupants. The same condition would have resulted had the train been bound in the other direction. Even though the whistle and bell had sounded warnings, the fire truck would have been caught, for the noise of the motor and siren would drown the locomotive's signals.

$57 IS RAISED FOR SOLDIERS

Italians Crippled in the War Will be Aided by Connellsville Countrymen.

At a meeting of Italian residents in McCrory Hall Sunday evening, the following committee was named to take charge of an entertainment to raise funds for Italians wounded in the war: Frank Chircosta, chairman; F. Molinari, assistant chairman; Agostino Trovatoli, secretary; Vincenzo Donato, treasurer.

Chairman Chircosta introduced the speaker of the evening, Joseph G. Gatto, who explained the work done by other sections of the country to relieve the pitiful conditions caused by the great war. He concluded by expressing a hope that the philanthrophic celebration might prove a big success. P. Bufano thanked the speaker and stated that he was satisfied with the success of the meeting.

Voluntary contributions were then invited and the sum of $57.25 was received. This will be used to meet the expenses of the celebration to be held on October 12. Another meeting is fixed for Thursday evening, September 28, at 7 o'clock, at which all plans will be completed. A cordial invitation is extended to all, regardless of political and religious ties.

IN TROUBLE AGAIN

Former Smithfield Principal Once More Faces Charges of a Girl.

Francis R. House, former principal of the Smithfield schools, who was convicted in February, 1907, of a charge of assault and aggravated assault and battery growing out of an attack on Mrs. Don Younie of Greensburg, is now held at Indianapolis, on a serious charge preferred by a stenographer of that city.

House is now an attorney in Indianapolis, where he went after securing a new trial in Westmoreland county and finally being acquitted. The court officials at Indianapolis wrote to Westmoreland county authorities for a history of House's case in the latter county.

Young House was charged by Mrs. Don Younie, then Miss Clarissa Baker, with attacking her on East Pittsburg street and stabbing her with a penknife. Shortly after his acquittal he disappeared and nothing was heard of him until the notice of his recent arrest.

WANT TROOPS WITHDRAWN.

Mexicans of the Commission Insist Pershing's Men Aren't Needed.

By Associated Press.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Sept. 25.—The members of the Mexican-American joint commission today began the fourth week of their investigation of border conditions in their efforts to bring about an adjustment of international questions.

The Mexican representatives were still insistent that their army is capable of maintaining peace in Northern Mexico, and that relations between the two countries would be greatly improved by the withdrawal of the American forces.

"DAMN" MUST GO.

Episcopalians Propose to Substitute the Word "Condemn."

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Elimination of the word "damn" from the Episcopal prayer book and the substitution of the word "condemn" is recommended by the commission of revision of the prayer book in a report to be submitted at the triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church at St. Louis next month.

It is proposed to change the disapproved word in parts of the scripture when it is quoted in the liturgical services.

ANNUAL RECEPTION FOR OLD FOLKS IS HELD; MANY THERE

Epworth League of M. E. Church Plays Host for 16th Time.

MRS. DUNLAP OLDEST GUEST

At 94 She Is One of the Most Cheerful of All; D. C. Hood Only Other One Past 90; Six are 80 or Over; Delightful Program is Presented.

The 16th annual reception for old folks, a happy event of the year among those of Connellsville and vicinity who are in the autumn of life, was held Saturday afternoon in the First Methodist Episcopal Church by the Epworth League. About 160 persons, representing virtually every denomination, attended and spent a delightful afternoon as the guests of the young folks, who put forth every effort toward giving their guests a good time. It was a notable gathering of old folks, the city's oldest residents being included in the guest list. While new faces were seen, a number of familiar ones were missing, death having removed since the reception last year the following persons: Mrs. Mary Moreland, Mrs. J. T. McCormick, Mrs. Lyda Stetson, Mrs. Clarissa McCormick, Mrs. Alice Boyd, J. R. Beatty, Mrs. D. Cunningham, Mrs. Cyrus Eckard, Mrs. Sarah Francis, Mrs. Mary Loomis, Mrs. Mary Frances Marsh, Mrs. S. D. McGraw, J. A. Renner and James Trearberth.

The oldest person present was Mrs. Mary Dunlap, who is in her 94th year. Next came D. C. Hood, who is 92 years old. Those in their eighties were William Stafford, 85 years old; Mrs. Elizabeth Kemp and Mrs. Ester Stacey, 82 years old; L. W. Wolfe, 81 years old; Mrs. L. V. Franks and Miss Lizzie Williams, 80 years old.

Following the usual custom the guests were conveyed to and from the church in automobiles and carriages, and on their arrival at the church they were received by a reception committee composed of young women, members of the league. They were then turned over to young women ushers, who saw that they were comfortably seated.

The following program was rendered: Hymn, "Jesus, I Love Thee"; prayer, Rev. G. L. C. Richardson; scripture reading; hymn, "Faith of Our Father;" solo, Miss Nelle Kaufman; recitation, G. L. C. Richardson, Jr.; violin and piano duet, Miss Dorothy Kurtz and Byron Porter; vocal solo, Grant Meyers; reading, Miss Gertrude Lindsay; vocal solo, Miss Elizabeth Williams of Scottdale; reading, Mrs. L. S. Michael; vocal solo, Rev. G. L. C. Richardson; addresses by Rev. J. L. Proudfit, Rev. C. C. Buckner, Rev. E. B Burgess, Rev. S. B. Houston, Rev. W. J. Everhart; testimony and praise services by the old folks.

At the conclusion of the program an elaborate supper consisting of chicken and gravy, mashed potatoes, tomatoes, celery, pickles, home-made jellies, cheese, bread and butter, cake, ice cream, tea and coffee, and after dinner mints were served.

At a table arranged in the center of the room all the guests, 80 years and older, were seated at the honor guests' table. The remainder of the guests were seated according to their age. Dahlias, asters, cosmos, gladioli and other fall flowers formed the attractive decorations.

Among the guests and the churches with which they are identified, were the following:

Mrs. L. W. Morris, Presbyterian; Mrs. S. E. Metzgar, Baptist; Mrs. Elizabeth Morgan, Methodist Episcopal; William Lohr, Methodist Episcopal; Mrs. Rebecca Long, Methodist Episcopal; Mr. and Mrs. John Layton, Methodist Episcopal; Mrs. Lucy Lowery, Episcopal; Miss Mary Kane, Methodist Episcopal; Mr. and Mrs. W. PETTY ROBBERIES CAUSE ANNOYANCE; SOME FOOD TAKEN

Only Cash Missed is at a Bell Telephone Pay Station.

TWO SPRING CHICKENS GONE

Porch Thieves Get Them, Along With Dozen Eggs and Some Butter in a Greenwood Refrigerator; Another Home Nearby Entered and Robbed.

Three robberies were committed Saturday night, one on the East Side and two in Greenwood. The Pennsylvania station in the East Side was broken into and the cash drawers of the Bell and Tri-State telephones were robbed of their contents. While the exact amount taken is not known, it is said that the total would not amount to more than $8.

The intruders gained an entrance by breaking a pane of glass, enabling them to unfasten the lock of the window.

A refrigerator on the rear porch of the home of Frank Kincell on Eighth street, Greenwood, was robbed of two spring chickens, a dozen of eggs and a small quantity of butter. There was no evidence of the burglars making any attempt to gain access to the house.

The home of F. P. Moore in Morrell avenue, Greenwood, was entered and after ransacking the pantry the robbers made their escape with a peck of potatoes, a peck of tomatoes, celery and a can of milk. An entrance was effected by cutting the window screen and prying open the window.

TWO LOCAL CASES

They Are Taken Up in Civil Court at Uniontown.

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, Sept. 25.—Two Connellsville cases were taken up in Civil court here shortly before noon. Before Judge Van Swearingen, the suit of Frank Curtis of Connellsville against the Pittsburg, McKeesport & Youghiogheny railroad for $15,000 damages was placed on trial. Mr. Curtis claims that amount of damages was suffered when the railroad cut through his lots on the West Side, Connellsville. The case was originally tried in February, 1914, and a compulsory non suit was ordered by court. Mr. Curtis asked that the non suit be stricken off and when this motion was denied the case was taken to the supreme court which last year reversed the Fayette court and struck off the non suit.

Before Judge Reppert, Marshal Dean of Connellsville is suing Gertrude Cochran, executrix of the will of W. H. Cochran for $600 and interest from September 28, 1902, on a promissory note. The issue hangs upon the identification of the signature on the paper.

COUNCIL TO MEET.

Will Award Contract for Paving Arch Street Tonight.

Council will meet in special session tonight to award the contract for paving Arch street. Bids were opened last Monday night and referred to Engineer S. M. Foust for tabulation. It is said that Malachia Duggan's bid figured up considerably lower than the two other firms who submitted estimates.

It is possible that the renaming of streets may be acted upon at this session and the solicitor directed to draw an ordinance.

GOVERNOR AT FAIR.

Will Make Address at Somerset on Wednesday Morning.

Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh will be one of the feature attractions of the Somerset county fair, which begins tomorrow. He will deliver an address on Wednesday at 10 o'clock and spend the rest of the day as the guest of friends in that section.

The fair includes a number of other fine features, a stock judging contest, athletic events, seed corn judging contest, band contest and the usual premiums in all other departments.

MEN'S LEAGUE HEARS A TALK

Omaha Man is First Speaker of the Season; Nearly 200 Attend the Meeting.

The address of W. E. Foshier, of Omaha, Neb., before the Men's Christian Workers' League in the Baptist Church yesterday afternoon consisted of a recital of his life's experience, dating from his early boyhood days until a few years ago. At the age of five he became a thief by stealing a nickel from his grandfather which was spent to purchase a plug of tobacco. At 12 he had learned to drink liquor and later acquired other bad habits. In young manhood he became a lawyer, choosing the criminal branch as his specialty, in which he became an adept at all the sharp practises known to the profession. As attorney for a murderer he substituted a rifle ball for the revolver ball which had killed the victim of the shot and the prosecution was unable to fasten the guilt upon his client and he is a free man today.

Later Attorney Foshier became the victim of a malignant cancer, during the treatment of which he underwent thirty-odd operations among them being the removal of a part of his jawbone. All the while he was without the church and indifferent to the entreaties of his first wife and his friends to mend his ways. Finally he yielded to the appeals of his father and he made a vow that if relieved of the physical affliction which he suffered he would devote his life to the salvation of the souls of his fellow men.

He abandoned the legal profession and engaged in the automobile business in which he has prospered amazingly. He now spends the greater part of his time traveling over the country making addresses, which service he renders without charge other than his car fare.

The meeting was attended by upwards of 200 men. President W. N. Leche presided. The musical program was furnished by an orchestra consisting of John Kiferle, J. W. Buttermore, Byron Porter and Joseph Hood and a quartet consisting of John Davis, George Laing, Robert Grim and C. W. Downs. The next meeting of the League will be held in the Sunday school room of the Presbyterian Church at 3 P. M. Sunday.

NAB BOYS FOR FALSE ALARM

Two Foreign Lads Are Accused of Calling Out the Fire Department; Will Get Hearing.

Frank Palladino and Frank Bromeo, two foreign boys, were arrested yesterday by City Detective Mitchell for turning in false alarms. They will be given a hearing in police court tomorrow morning. Bromeo was released from the lockup when his parents paid a $10 forfeit, but Palladino is still in the cells. The false alarm was one turned in yesterday morning from Box 433, at Connell avenue and Third street. The boys were arrested by Detective Mitchell on Connell avenue near the box.

Albert Ogleport of Leisenring No. 3 was sentenced to six days work on the streets yesterday morning. The charge against him was fighting. Ogleport and a certain Walter Irwin, who has not been apprehended as yet, raised a disturbance on Pittsburg street near Apple at about 11 o'clock Saturday night. Ogleport escaped from the police, but was captured by Patrolman George Francis on Third, street, West Side.

There was no police court this morning. Yesterday six prisoners were tried.

WANT PACKET AGAIN

Efforts Being Made to Revive Boat Service to Fairmont.

A packet service on the Monongahela river from Pittsburg through to Fairmont and other West Virginia towns may be inaugurated in the near future. If shippers in the Monongahela valley give indications of supporting the service, the packet Ruth of the Kanawha Transportation Company will give both passenger and freight service.

It is believed that the packet will be taken from the Kanawha district and put into service on the Monongahela river just as soon as the Ohio river season opens again, and that she will be operated to Fairmont on a once a week schedule should business justify it.

BAN TO BE LIFTED

Sunday Schools Will Have Little Folks on Hand Next Sunday.

Sunday School superintendents are making preparations to resume fall sessions next Sunday, the state's quarantine preventing children from attending public gatherings being due to expire on September 26.

Attendance has suffered considerably in the last month, the primary schools and infant departments having been compelled to discontinue services entirely. Those in charge of the schools are all planning to conduct attendance campaigns in every department once the schools are permitted to open.

Accidental Death Verdict.

A coroner's jury rendered a verdict of accidental death in the case of Gideon Hostetler who was killed on September 2 when a train struck Aaron's automobile truck at the Fifth avenue crossing in Scottdale.

SIDEWALK FOR TROTTER ROAD IS NOW BEING URGED

Residents Along That Thoroughfare Say Safety Demands It.

HAVE TO WALK IN THE ROADWAY

With New Route to Uniontown, Traffic is Expected to Increase, With Greater Danger, Especially to Children; Take Chances, Autoists Say.

Alarmed by the number of accidents that occur along the Trotter-Leisenring road, residents of that section have started a movement to have the state and county construct sidewalks to provide a safety zone upon which pedestrians may travel.

Residents say that there were some sidewalks before the road was paved, but that many of them were ruined by the construction work. Now it is necessary for residents of that section to walk on the road, and they are constantly menaced by speeding motorists. One child was killed not long ago and narrow escapes are of daily occurrence. If there were some sort of sidewalks, residents say, they would not be compelled to walk along the road and motorists would not be in constant dread of running someone down.

"When the new road to Uniontown is completed, this road will be more of a speedway than it is now," said one man from that section. "We might try to enforce a speed law, but there is almost as much danger to a pedestrian from a car going 24 miles an hour as from one at a higher rate of speed. We have to travel this road and if we had sidewalks it wouldn't be necessary to be dodging automobiles all the time."

The danger to children, it is pointed out, is very great, and will be more so after the school terms open for the little folks have to traverse the road to various schools of Dunbar township located at Trotter and Leisenring. Scarcely a day passes, but what some child has a narrow escape.

The matter will be taken up with county and state authorities to see if sidewalks cannot be secured without cost to the property owners. Narrow walks of concrete on each side of the road would not be expensive, compared to their value in conserving human life.

CLAIM DISALLOWED

Compensation Refused Widow of D. B. King, Found Dead in Mine.

The Workmen's Compensation Board has disallowed the claim of Mrs. Libbie C. King against the H. C. Frick Coke Company for insurance because of the death of her husband, D. B. King, who was found dead in a mine on May 18, this year. The board ruled that there was not sufficient evidence to sustain the claim of the accidental death.

Referee Thomas J. Dunn conducted a hearing at Scottdale on September 8 and found that death was due to natural causes.

FINDS SICK NEGRO

He is Picked Up on Tracks, Treated and Sent Home.

Will Johnston, colored, and giving his address as Locust street, Philadelphia, was picked up yesterday by Baltimore & Ohio Engineer J. B. Coughenour as he was lying sick upon the railroad tracks.

Coughenour brought the negro to the city hall, where he received medical attention from Dr. W. J. Churchill. Arrangements were then made with the Baltimore & Ohio, by which he was sent to his home in Philadelphia.

Bridge is Disapproved.

The State Water Supply Commission last week refused permission to the commissioners of Westmoreland county to construct a reinforced concrete bridge across the headwaters of Indian Creek, near Horne's mill, in Donegal township.

"The Cold Storage Egg"

is not always above suspicion. Popular imagination ascribes great food value to the egg—but it is not a muscle-builder. There is more real body-building nutriment in a Shredded Wheat Biscuit than in the same weight of eggs or beef-steak—and it costs much less. Delicious for any meal with sliced peaches or with fruits of any kind.

"You'll Do Better at Dunns"

THE E. DUNN STORE — The Home of Quality and Service — Connellsville, Pa.

The "Better Dunn Suits and Coats" are Attracting Much Attention

Quality appeals to all alike! It's a part of woman's nature to have pride in the quality of her apparel—hence the preference of so many people for "Dunn's Clothes" which have quality for their very foundation.

New styles are arriving daily to replace the sold ones going out. The weather has created brisk buying and the choice models don't linger. There are no duplicates of the models in town and no two of the better suits are exactly alike.

There are serges, velours, broadcloths and fancy weaves, in a multitude of styles which draw on every good Autumn tint for color enchantment.

A Tailored Suit at $15.00
—In plain and dark brown broadcloth with heavy and velvet trimmed collar; coat is 30 inches long and buttons up close to chin or can be worn open; cuffs are finished with velvet and braid. Semi fitting, back with side belt effect; lined with best quality satin. Skirt is very wide with sherred and belted waist line.

This One at $25.00.
—In navy brown, olive and black poplins. Coat is 34 inches long, with large collar trimmed with velvet, plain cuffs and fine quality satin lining. Has full flared skirt with pockets and belted waist.

This Suit at $20.00.
—In navy brown and black all wool diagonal suiting with large velvet collar; coat is 34 inches long, can be buttoned up close to chin or worn open; has side belt effect and side pleats; skirt is very wide and full with sherred back.

Five Different Lines of NEW FALL CORSETS —a style for every figure.
Included are the Modart, Warner's, Lucille Henderson and Rengo Belt—priced at $1.00 to $15.00.

Tomorrow's a Good Day to See the New Millinery That Came Late for the Style Show.
—especially the new velvet, panne velvet and Hatters plush lightly trimmed, but very engaging and in colors that match up with Fall costumes.

Some of them show bits of fur or narrow ribbons or appliqued ornaments, stick-ups, large and small wings.

Navy, brown, green, burgundy, purple and of course black.

$5.00 buys a likable hat—you can go as high at $15.00—pattern hats to $45.00.

Warm the cockles of the heart

—From original drawing made by Gordon Grant for American Radiator Company

The old home place is doubly cheerful, and there's no hesitation now about "taking baby over to grandpa's and grandma's" since chills around the windows and drafty halls and floors have been banished by the new outfit of

AMERICAN & IDEAL
RADIATORS BOILERS

These modern, sectional heating outfits are so easily placed in completed buildings, that many an old homestead, rich with memories, has been given renewed life—with its comfort greatly increased.

In the scientific design and construction of IDEAL Boilers, there is correct air mixing to give complete combustion, there is a liberal sized fire-pot, the fire surfaces are self-cleaning, and there is automatic, perfect control of heat.

They are endorsed by all architects and engineers, and used in over a million buildings, at home and abroad. They are fully guaranteed, yet cost no more than inferior makes. Accept no substitute.

A No. 5-22-W IDEAL Boiler and 400 ft. of 38-in. AMERICAN Radiators, costing the owner $220, were used to heat this cottage. At this price the goods can be bought of any reputable, competent Fitter. This did not include cost of labor, pipe, valves, freight, etc., which vary according to climatic and other conditions.

A lifetime of lowest heating cost!

NEED CHANGES OF NAGS.

"It is no time to swap horses while crossing a stream," was an argument advanced by Abraham Lincoln when he ran for President the second time. Lincoln was full of homely arguments which appealed to a homely people. The attempt of President Wilson and the Democratic organization to borrow this expression and apply it in the present campaign will prove [illegible]

There is a decided difference between conditions in 1862 and in 1916 [illegible] between Lincoln and Wilson. In 1862 the nation was convulsed in bloody [illegible] It was the worst kind of war, it was fratricidal war. One part of the nation sought to destroy the other part. The Confederated States of America revolted against the United States of America; the South warred against the North. At the time of Lincoln's candidacy for reelection the nation was convulsed with the war. The homely wisdom of Lincoln's remark appealed to the people of the North in 1862 and they elected him with great unanimity.

No such condition appeals to the people of this nation today. The country is happily not at war either fratricidal or [illegible] though we are now [illegible] reminded that President Wilson kept us out of war. This may be true but not [illegible]

President Wilson and his party have narrowly escaped keeping the nation out of [illegible] and kept the country [illegible] than any [illegible] change of horses to [illegible] swamp which threatens to engulf it when the people [illegible] business cover.

PROGRESSIVE PURIFICATION.

The State Department of Health is proceeding [illegible] to [illegible] purification of the public streams of the [illegible] something [illegible] the means [illegible] involved.

[illegible] before [illegible] the public [illegible] The coal operators have been experimenting along this line and the [illegible] have offered to [illegible] whenever they [illegible] and practical.

Now that [illegible] valuable by-products of coal mining [illegible] impurities [illegible] field in solution in mine drainage there will be a greater [illegible]

[illegible] the people will [illegible] demand that the [illegible] be punished [illegible]

WILL NOT BE PAID.

It is now definitely settled that the teachers of the Connellsville public [illegible] will not receive pay for the month of September during which the schools were not opened on account of the infantile paralysis quarantine imposed by the State Department of Health. Until an official interpretation of the section of the School Code relating to such matters was given by Dr. Nathan C. Schaeffer, superintendent of Public Instruction there was considerable difference of opinion as to the duties and obligations of the school board.

The School Code provides that when the board of school directors is compelled to close any school or schools on account of contagious disease or for any cause while otherwise provided in their contract of employment the school directors shall be liable for the salaries of the teachers of said school or schools for the time for which they are engaged.

Doctor Schaeffer interpreted this section to mean that when the contract of employment [illegible] that the teachers are not to receive pay for any time lost on account of an epidemic, the directors are not obliged to pay the salaries of the teachers for the time lost on account of the epidemic.

The contract between the Connellsville board and the teachers [illegible] such a contingency, hence under Doctor Schaeffer's interpretation the board is not obliged to pay salaries for September. While the teachers have suffered some inconvenience and loss and the school [illegible] the teachers [illegible] the wisdom of the precaution [illegible] the State Department of Health [illegible] the spread of [illegible] the state health [illegible] regulations.

DELIVERING THE GOODS.

If when President Wilson [illegible] Congress to enact the Adamson law there were any doubts [illegible] influenced [illegible] seemed to [illegible] political possibilities in the measure all such doubts [illegible] have been removed by subsequent events. The most significant and striking of these doubt removing agencies has been the political activities in Wilson's behalf by the leaders of whom the law was passed. Hon. Jonathan Bourne, president of the Republican Publicity Association does not hesitate to charge these leaders with being engaged in an attempt to Deliver the Goods. Of their efforts he says:

[illegible] for special legislation for the benefit of a [illegible] interests of the general public leaders of [illegible] labor [illegible] now endeavoring to deliver the votes of their members to the Wilson administration [illegible] that [illegible] administration [illegible] official power in the [illegible] The price has been paid in legislation which provides [illegible] the administration expects the [illegible] record [illegible]

[illegible] that the wage increase was for the general welfare. The argument is based upon the fact that there was special legislation for special interests [illegible] that there [illegible] give the [illegible]

[illegible] purity of elections while [illegible] corrupt [illegible] question [illegible] Congress [illegible] general welfare or for the interests of [illegible]

[illegible] the general welfare must decide at the November election [illegible] votes for wage increases and [illegible] administration [illegible] United States [illegible]

During the recent campaign in Maine a similar effort was made to deliver the goods for Daniel J. McGillicuddy, Democratic congressman, who was a candidate for re-election. Both he and the Democratic spellbinders who stumped his district laid great stress on the fact that he had voted for the Wilson-Adamson bills. He had been [illegible] elected by the labor vote of his district but the Adamson deal did not [illegible] him from defeat in his fourth campaign.

Labor leaders are not slow to recognize their friends and punish their enemies in politics but if there is anything they resent more hotly [illegible] is being sold and delivered [illegible] by any interest in any [illegible]

High Class Grocery Departments

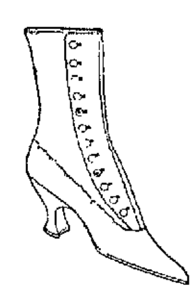

It is a generally admitted fact that the Union Supply Company has the finest grocery stores in Fayette and Westmoreland counties. In fact when you go to their stores and see the extensive departments, the modern equipment, and the high class goods, you are really assured that we are entitled to the distinction. Operating sixty stores of the extent of ours requires an immense amount of goods, and by buying these requirements in large lots for cash we get many advantages that a small dealer could not expect. For this, and many other reasons, we are able to sell the highest class of goods in the market at as low prices as other stores sell inferior goods—now that is an inducement for almost anybody. Get our quotations daily, buy our high-class goods and compare them—that is the way to test the truth of our statements.

In connection with each of these grocery departments we have a strictly sanitary meat department, approved by the State and Federal Inspectors. This means that the articles we sell in our meat markets are inspected and that they are high-class goods. In addition to the high grade of goods we offer you good service, free deliveries, and courteous treatment. We solicit your business.

GIRL TO TEACH THE INDIANS

Miss Florence Welsh of Near Dawson Gets Appointment to the Apache Reservation in Arizona: Miscellaneous Shower Given for Bride; Notes.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTDALE, Sept. 25.—The graduation exercises of the teachers' training class of the United Brethren Sunday school was held in the Scottdale Theatre last evening, where the congregation is holding church services while the new building is in course of construction. Fifteen students were graduated, making 71 who have graduated and hold state diplomas from this Sunday school. Of the 71, 19 hold International diplomas. This is the fourth class to graduate from the Sunday school.

W. C. Henderson of Greensburg made an excellent address and the congregation furnished music. The following persons graduated: Mrs. H. C. Miner, Mrs. Harry Porterfield, Mrs. William Eberhart, Miss Goldie Shauer, Miss Pearl Frotts, Misses Blanche, Ethel and Margaret Loucks, Edna Hockenberry, Anna Stauffer, Evelyn Darling, Florence Brown, F. D. O'Rorak and L. S. Shirey.

SUNDAY SCHOOL MEETING.

On next Sunday morning unless the quarantine is extended over the state regular Sunday school classes will be held at the United Brethren Church here, and this being the beginning of the new year in the church promotions will be made without special exercises.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

Mrs. George Hough on Thursday evening gave a very pleasant miscellaneous shower for Miss Esther Hough at the country home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hough. Nice refreshments were served. A color scheme of pink and white was carried out in the evening. Many nice presents were received by Miss Hough whose marriage to Virgil Cump of Canton, Ohio, will be an event of this week.

WILL TEACH INDIANS

Anna Mary Hurst, LaVerne Kestar, Lex Porter, Clyde Pyle and Lucy Felar were the Scottdale guests at a farewell party for Miss Florence Welsh at the country home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Welsh, near Dawson, on Saturday evening. Miss Welsh who is a graduate of the Alverton high school, after teaching school for six years, took the civil service examination at Pittsburg in the spring, and on September 8 received the appointment of school teacher for the Apache Indians at the White Mountain Indian Reservation in Arizona. The party was an old fashioned corn party, and the house was decorated in corn shocks with the red ears of corn. Old fashioned games were played and the refreshments consisted of corn pone, corn candy, roasting ears and warm ginger bread. Miss Welsh will leave Tuesday to take up her new work.

Examine Your TEETH Tonight
—after you clean them.

You will find, in all probability, an accumulation of tartar on the enamel and bits of food deposit hiding between the crevices. YOUR DENTIFRICE does not FULLY CLEAN! Loss of teeth is caused usually by one of two conditions—Pyorrhea or decay, both of which develop, as a rule, only in the mouth where germ-laden tartar is present.

SENRECO, the recently discovered formula of a dental specialist, is two-fold in its action. First, it REALLY CLEANS, embodying specially prepared, soluble granules unusually effective in cleaning away food deposits. Second, it is particularly destructive to the germ of Pyorrhea. Yet it is perfectly safe, containing neither injurious chemicals nor hard grit.

Avoid Pyorrhea and decay. Get Senreco from your dealer today. In large tubes, 25c. Send 4c to Senreco, 304 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, for liberal-sized trial package.

SCARCITY OF COKE MORE PRONOUNCED AS CONSUMPTION AT FURNACES INCREASES

Prices Scale Upward With Sales at $3.00 and Better.

LABOR SUPPLY A BIG PROBLEM

Cool Weather Has Not Brought Relief as Expected; Buyers Sound Out the Market for First Half; Operators Inclined to Make $3.00 Asking Price

COKE TRADE SUMMARY

A scarcity of coal cars cut down the shipments of coal from the Connellsville region last week about 70,000 tons, but coke shipments increased 10,000 tons. There is practically all the supply ... cars but coal cars ... to ... 7½ ... the ... shipments ... Connellsville ... realizing that coal ... when profit ... coal at ... The combined ... of coal and ... from the region was ... equivalent to 358,000 tons of coke as compared with an ... of ... 000 tons the ... previous week. Coke production ... tons and shipments ... tons indicating that some ... was needed to fill ... mers ... requirement for the week but conditions show no improvement as was expected ... of cool weather ... sales between ... $2.75 ... and $3.00 ... The tendency is ... upward ... ten are ... market for first half ... but ... general inquiries are ... it is ... impossible ... operators to ... $3.00 as ... asking price for furnace coke ... first half and ... to ... to a high level on all grades.

Special to The Weekly Courier.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 20.—The scarcity of coke has ... become a more pronounced ... While there is little active inquiry in the market for spot furnace coke it is probable that the majority of consumers would prefer to secure some additional tonnage as a safeguard for the future and it is probable that 1,000 or 2,000 tons additional production could be disposed of for a few ... at a fair price in putting the furnaces in better condition.

A slight increase in the consumption of coke ... to keep pace with the ... A cooler weather arrives the furnaces work much better and their output ... increases. The consumption of coke does not increase in the same ratio ... with cooler weather the consumption of ... per ton of pig iron produced ... rapidly ... the ... furnace output in July and August were light ... lighter than ... in the summer months while October output ... already ...

There has been a sale of coke for the past week ... at $2.8 ... but there is not ... coke available at that ... at ... standard brand and there have been sales ... and $2.97 with reports also that ... better has been done ... market ... fairly ... at ... of $2.95 to $3.00.

While there are occasional reports of car shortage ... it ... in general that the car supply for coke shipments is ample fully equal to the production that can be secured with the labor supply available. Beyond all question the controlling influence is the supply of labor. Contrary to expectation the condition as to labor has not eased off with the more moderate temperature and labor supply is a greater problem with most operators than it was a month ago. The trend is unfavorable and there may be more trouble later. The usual expectation is that when the weather becomes so bad as to curtail outside construction work and work on the ... there will be an accretion of labor in the coke region but this prospect is uncertain.

Several furnace interests have begun to ... the market quietly as to coke supplies for the first half of the new year apparently prompted to take an interest in the market prospect that early by the reports that coke operators were not considering prices under $2.75 for the first half year. There is scarcely any formal inquiry ... but it is plain that buyers are beginning to become interested. ... here is plenty time left it is not improbable that they will watch the market for soft spots. As pig iron is now being sold freely for delivery in the first half of the new year furnaces have an incentive to take hold.

Several weeks ago some of the operators intimated that as conditions were breaking in the spot market they would be indisposed to consider seriously any price below $2.75 for the first half. Lately some coke operators have expressed the view that the dickering should open with an asking price of $3.00 but the presumption is that if such a price were named it would be subject to modification under the stress of actual negotiation so that $2.75 seems to be a fair quotable figure as the most likely price at which early contracts will be closed. Of late in quoting the contract market which has really been nominal it has been necessary to give some weight to the prices recently done on the present half year's business. In some cases $2.50 or even lower but with almost three months of the half year gone such figures have no weight in considering the situation. Even the operators who sold at $2.50 for the half year would demand more for the last quarter with its usual uncertainties when winter sets. The contract market is therefore quotable at $2.75 as a fair appraisal instead of the nominal quotation of $2.50 to $2.75 hitherto given in these reports.

The foundry coke market is strong but is not overly active. There is a fair run of buying for spot and prompt delivery but there is only occasional contracting. The market as a whole now stands quotable as follows:

Spot furnace	$2.8 ... $3.00
Contract furnace	$2.75
Spot foundry	$... $3.50
Contract foundry	$ ... $3.50

There has been a fairly large business done in basic pig iron the past week, estimates of sales in this general territory ranging from 25,000 to 50,000 tons. There was considerable business done at $18.25 Valley with some reported at $18.50 while on the other hand it is understood that about 1,000 tons was picked up at only a shade over $18.00. The market is fairly quotable at an advance of 25 cents at $18.25 to $18.50 and in some quarters the prediction is made that the next sales will be at $19.00. While the market has advanced fractionally the showing is not particularly favorable as to its general strength for the reason that until very lately sales were only for the remainder of this year while it is now the furnaces have been selling for the first half of next year at ... smaller advance than was predicted and they may soon find that they have mortgaged the first half to a large extent without securing much of an advance after all. There is some export inquiry for basic the ... for some time while the export demand for Bessemer continues. There is a fair movement in foundry iron with prices gradually hardening. Basic is quotable at a 25 cent advance other grades being not quotably changed as follows:

Bessemer	$21.00 ... $21.50
Basic	$18.25 ... $18.50
... mills	$18.00 ... $18.75
...	$18.00 ... $18.75
...	$18.00 ... $18.25

These prices are f.o.b. Valley prices delivered Pittsburg being higher by the 95 cent freight.

STEEL MARKET GROWS STRONGER

Mills Accept Specific Tonnage Orders Rather Than Make Open Contracts; Production is Increasing

Special to The Weekly Courier.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The American Metal Market and Daily Iron & Steel Report will review the steel and iron trade tomorrow as follows:

The steel market has continued to grow stronger. The mills are accepting obligations mainly in the case of specific tonnages there being relatively little making of open contracts and in some branches of the trade there is scarcely any business being done the mills being filled already for the period they are willing to consider. Thus in the case of sheets and tin plates books have not been opened for the first half of 1917. Nevertheless the total obligation on mill books do not seem to decrease to any noticeable extent.

Steel production is increasing with greatly improved weather conditions and nearly all the mills expect next month to make a new record for a month's production. The increasing steel shipments have not apparently reduced the pressure for deliveries and the majority of mills are having difficulty in arranging satisfactory delivery schedules with their customers.

Woven wire fence has been advanced one and a half points or about $2.50 per net ton. Total advances in official prices on this movement have been $25 on plain wire $22 on nails and $22 on fence but some of the official quotations on wire products have become nominal there being no sellers at premium.

Fourth quarter sheet bars on regular contracts are expected to show an advance of $2 a ton over the third quarter prices. A larger advance had been predicted. In the open market unfinished steel remains extremely scarce.

The coke market has stiffened somewhat as to prompt on account of greater labor scarcity and operators are talking $2.75 to $3.00 on first half contracts.

The activity in basic pig iron in the central west has now extended to first half deliveries but the market appears to be up only about 25 cents failing to bear out most of the recent predictions.

RAILWAY EARNINGS

Net Operating Revenues for Year Reach the Sum of $1,176,801,001.

Net revenues from operations of $1,176,801,001 for the year ending June 30 compared with $870,40... in 1915 for all railroads having revenue of $1,000,000 a year or over were shown yesterday in the Interstate Commerce Commission's report. The net revenue per mile was $5,131 for the current year compared with $176 last year.

Railway operating revenues for the year aggregated $3,396,805,... operating expenses $2,220,001,231 taxes ... $146,731,147 uncollectible revenues $97,720, and operative income $1,0,9,211,801. For June only the net revenue from railway operation was $10 151,143.

The figures for the year show the railroads gross revenue from freight was $2,109,...,699, from passenger service $673,47..., mails $60,057,967, express $81,011,681 and other transportation over $97,000,000. Of the year's net revenue from operations $516,061,320 was in the eastern district, $165,322,562 in the southern district and $491,320,119 in the western district.

Ask Reduction In Price

The New York Trust Company trustee for bondholders of the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad has petitioned the United States circuit court at Cleveland to reduce the price of the road from $18,500,000 to $8,000,000. The road is in the hands of receiver and has been offered at judicial sale a dozen times but no bids have been made for it at the price fixed by the court.

BUREAU WILL EXTEND SCOPE

Health Conservation of Other Workers Than Mine Employes to be Given Attention by Experts

The United States Bureau of Mines which has in the past been mainly interested in the reduction of deaths by accidents among men connected with the mining industries has broadened its scope to include the health of men and has just issued a report on health conservation at steel mills. The report is the result of a cooperative agreement between Director Van H. Manning of the Bureau of Mines and the Public Health Service, the latter assigning J. A. Watkins to the task.

The importance of the prevention of disease among workers can be realized from the fact that the average loss of time due to illness among approximately 30,000,000 workers in the United States is nine days a year says Surgeon Watkins. If medical attention be estimated at $1 a day and earnings at $2 a day the loss amounts to $883,000,000.

At some length the report deals with various matters which it is considered are necessary to conserve the health of steelworkers. Among the subjects are those relating to system of medical supervision with a full time physician employed to see that injured workmen are cared for properly, that the health of workmen is watched carefully and to make physical examination of employes. The matter of personal hygiene is also given prominence as are also questions relating to proper lighting systems. Methods to avoid fatigue are suggested and it is indicated from the report that shorter hours in some branches of industry would add to efficiency and at the same time conserve the health of the workmen.

COKE FOR HEATING

Is Being Much More Generally Used, Principally in Households

According to the United States Geological Survey nearly 2,000,000 tons of coke from beehive and by product ovens were used in 1915 for heating purposes mainly domestic. For heating particularly in household furnaces it possesses many advantages and is said to be coming rapidly into favor.

In a general way it has the composition and heating value of anthracite having the advantage of not clinkering and of igniting more readily.

At the Theatres

SOISSON THEATRE.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.—Grace Darling and Harry Fox are starred in the new series entitled Beatrice Fairfax which starts at the Soisson Theatre today. Each episode is a complete story. The first episode shows Beatrice at her desk opening her mail. One letter in particular interests her. It is signed by a girl who tells the confidence that she believes her fiance who is a watchman in a bank is growing cold in his affection. See this interesting story. Hired and Fired is another one of the incomparable Timothy Dobbs that's Me series featuring Carter DeHaven. In this one Timothy once more proves that one can travel in the proper quality and quantity. The Timber Wolf, a Big U drama with Molly Malone. The Small Magnetic Land, a Rex drama with Gertrude Selby.

LYMAN H. HOWE'S TRAVELLESTIVAL, which comes to the Soisson theatre on Tuesday September 26 is inimitable not only because of the scenes themselves but also because of the way they are presented. Mr. Howe links the sense of sound with the sense of sight so precisely and yet so naturally that he excels in hypnotic in his compelling power. He knows how to imbue the mere lights and shadows of electric rays with a vital ... that is akin to life itself. Hidden corners of the earth, life and customs, ... strange climes and the scenic spots of foreign lands are all produced in picture form that is perfection. It lifts the veil which distance has placed between us and foreign countries and enables us to realize how others dress, move and have their being. It teaches without dryness and imparts a certain knowledge which no books or lecturer could. Mr. Howe's new program includes mid ocean ... Spain, far off Hawaii, the United States Military Academy at West Point and diversified activities by the splendidly trained cadets, snow bound Norway, the amusing antics of a tiny baby, odd dissolving portraits of famous men, various specimens of birds and fish in their natural colors, new animated cartoons and many others.

PARAMOUNT THEATRE.

THE WEAKNESS OF STRENGTH. A Paramount feature in five acts starring Edmund Breese, ably supported by Ormi Hawley, Evelyn Brent, Clifford Bruce and others is today's attraction. Through a real estate purchase Daniel Gaynor (Edmund Breese) acquires all rights in the waterway leading from Moose River to the mill. The original owner has never made use of his rights but Gaynor whose one thought is to get power refuses to allow logs to be floated down the river running through his property. The men resent this injustice and there is a fight between Gaynor and Jill Jackson Pill representing the lumbermen. The ruthless way in which Gaynor deals with the men loses for him the sympathy of his one friend Mary Alden, a widowed school teacher with whom he is in love. The loggers are forced to sell their output to Gaynor getting a poor price for it than ever before. He in turn then sells it to the ship company in the city at a lower figure than they have ever paid. Gaynor has had to get the assistance of the ... and deputies to protect his interests and he has won the victory only after many brutal fights. Dell hired with Gaynor's executive ability offers him the position of general manager at a large salary and he goes to the city. Mary Alden refuses to accompany him as his wife for she does not believe that happiness can be built on a foundation of injustice. At the ship yards Gaynor continues in the high handed way he has begun. He cuts wages, speeds up the work of the men to a cruel degree, in other ways makes himself a tyrant. After establishing the happiness of Mary Alden's daughter and her husband Gaynor goes to Mary and finds happiness for himself. Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew in a Metro comedy will also be seen. Tomorrow Blanche Sweet in The Dupe and Billie Burke in Gloria's Romance will be the attractions.

How much more, he wondered, could the Arizona endure? It was not only the Varon which was sending shells through the sides and ricocheting them up from the sea, the Floron was firing also at the Arizona. It was time that the prince would be concentrating all his dreadnaughts on the newer American ships, but he had only twenty-two first line ships against thirteen—that wasn't quite two to one. The Idaho was fighting two ships; now the Arizona was fighting two, and that was hard with only one turret and that commanded by Ross, probably, who hadn't ever been in such a turret before. What was the matter with the Pennsylvania? Wasn't she standing up to her work? Standing up to it! Good God! She had three against her, two Trojans they must be, and one of the Pharaohs. And the Pennsylvania hadn't had her battle practice this year, for she had been detached to Mexico. But if three ships were against her, what was gone from our line? The Oklahoma? That must be it—there was a gap in the circle back there. And was the New York on fire? No; that must be the smoke of destroyers trying to screen a ship, but that meant the ship was beaten—it was no longer able to fight.

Some more shells disrupted on the other side of the armor. They killed all the men who were out there; but, at the same stroke, they did the men's work.

Holt, the turret captain, was speaking. "We can train the turret now, sir."

The voice tube which hopefully had been telling the range and corrections to No. 2 turret every time the after turret fired spoke again. The sight setters, who had changed the sights at each correction, once more made the adjustments. No. 2 turret fired. Corrections came, and then again, the sort of corrections which confessed that the guns were missing. Who was spotting the shots and missing the corrections and from what point of observation? The foremast was gone, of course, the mainmast now also was down. They must be spotting the fall of the shells and correcting the range from the running tower, only a few feet higher than the turret. That was why the guns were missing.

But the shells from the Varon and the Floron were not firing over or short! Oh, they were hitting the Arizona very hard! And the Varon had had no mast for fifteen minutes, and several salvos ago the Floron had lost hers. But the control officers were spotting their shells from somewhere where they could see.

Flashing specks flitted in the sky between the ships. Bob caught sight of them a couple of times, and he knew what they were—the enemy aeroplanes, which had driven the American planes away before the battle. The enemy's planes were hovering there for one purpose only now—to take up the work of the fire control tops for the regent's ships. Officers in the planes were watching the effect of the fire, and as it went over or fell short of the American ships they were signaling the corrections. That was how the Varon and the Floron could spare their masts.

Bob recognized it. "Well, we know they were practicing that. It's one of the things we were going to get around to after awhile."

For himself he was incapable of bitterness at that, but impotent rage ran in him as he tried now to encourage his men when they fired and was told that they had missed. "I was on," Louden, the firing pointer, was crying. "I know, sir, I was 'on.' And I fired when I was 'on,' sir! Sir, I know that I was 'on!'"

"I know it, too, Louden," Bob said. "We'll try again."

"But they're hitting, sir! They're hitting!" Louden was beside himself as his mates begged him to be more careful, to be sure to "give it to 'em" next time.

"We're firing over," Bob said as calmly as he could. "Down 100!"

The floor of the turret was tipping. He had noticed it some time before, but now it told that the Arizona was listing badly. Bob saw that his men realized it and fought on the more madly for it. Their turret now was firing alone. The after turret had ceased entirely. And now even the voice in the speaking tube was silent. It had been their sole connection with the rest of the ship. Its ceasing left them isolated in the battle, alone. But as they fired at the range and deflection which Louden and Bob agreed between them the doors to the handling room below continued to push up, and shells and ammunition came up on the cars. Young Wayne, the ensign, was working with his men in the handling room, and in the engine room some crews had stayed to keep power on the ship.

The Arizona was sinking. Every one knew that, but— "By ——, sir, if they'll stick in the handling room, if they stay at the engines, we'll stick here!"

But there was really no use firing now. The Arizona listed so badly that the guns could not be elevated to the target. A salvo of shells—those awful deadish shells sent on signal from the aeroplane—struck all in a bunch somewhere below, and a magazine aft blew up, or perhaps it was boilers first. Anyway, the Arizona was going down fast. As she went there was no escape from the turret through the handling room. Instead Holt was helping pull up Wayne and his men into the turret. There was only the small, heavy steel door which let out the back of the turret to the deck. It was found jammed as Bob ordered it opened, so some of the men cursed and others cried that they didn't want to get out, and some one yelled to crawl out through the guns, and two of the men tried it. Then the door opened, and Bob stood back to order his men out ahead of him, but—the ship was going down then—Holt seized Bob about the waist and shoved him through the door, and outside some one else grabbed him and swam with him away from the ship.

It was the destroyer Wainwright which picked up Bob and the sailor who swam with him. The destroyer had dashed in to try to find the admiral in the water near where the Idaho sank, for the enemy was having trouble himself at that instant. The Xerxes, which had been observed to be listing for some time, was slipping down after the Idaho to the bottom, and the Floron had turned over and was floating keel to the sky. The Trojan, very low at the stern, was being taken in tow by another ship, and two of the Pharaohs—so men on the Wainwright said—must soon sink.

Guns were still rumbling down the column. Four of the American ships still were fighting. They finished two more of the Pharaohs before they drifted, like the rest of the silenced ships, waterlogged hulks, for the Thors and the Zeus ships, which long before had beaten the Vermonts and the Connecticuts, closed in and finished the task of the Pharaohs.

Bob Wendell stood on the trembling deck of the Wainwright, surrounded by bright eyed, tense lipped, exhausted men. One of the battle cruisers of the regent and one of the destroyers seemed to observe the Wainwright and that it was escaping from the battle. The destroyer gave chase. Bob Wendell watched the other destroyer dully. His head drooped, and he closed his eyes. Then he opened them again and roused himself. He was seeing things which made him think again—Nellie and then Garry's little boy with the straw hat with the "U. S. S. Arizona" ribbon.

"The radio room is hearing from the shore," some one said. "They want to know the result of the battle."

"The official press bureau announces," said the bulletin pasted to the board before the office of the Eight News, "that the American fleet has inflicted heavy losses upon the enemy, but has also suffered severely. American vessels are retiring toward New York."

That was the sole official communication authorized by Washington that night, but the entire truth was spread through the nation with marvelous swiftness. How it spread no one could say. It was spread by secret codes telegraphed as ordinary messages; it was spread by private wireless plants operated in secret places by the agents of the enemy who, perhaps, learned the result of the battle directly from the radios of the victorious ships. However the news was spread, Nellie Wendell heard the facts repeated from one to another about her as she stood before the newspaper office, staring up at the few false lines of official "information."

"We're licked, they say! • • • Who says so? • • • I don't know, but they say the regent's sunk our fleet! • • • That can't be so! Why, we had the best navy of its size in the world! Why, the fleet— • • • But, I tell you, they're gone! I got it straight. They're all sunk—the Idaho, the Arizona, the Pennsylvania and"—

Nellie turned and faced the man who was speaking. "Please," she requested him quietly, "please tell me how you heard that and—and anything else you know."

The man's eyes softened as they gazed at her; he took off his hat. "What do you mean, miss?"

"You said our ships particularly the Arizona—were sunk. How did you hear that?"

"Why—why, I just heard it, miss. Every one's saying it. I just heard it."

CHAPTER XV.

Troops Leave For the East.

At midnight a bugle roused Jim Ashby—private in company F of the Twentieth Illinois regiment—from his blanket, where he lay with fellow recruits on the grass of Grant park. The Twentieth Illinois was one of the new regiments organized from the old Third regiment of the state guard. Consequently it was very short of tents, as well as of equipment of every kind. Only the corporals and sergeants, who had been privates and corporals in the militia, possessed uniforms. Jim's platoon was commanded by Connor, created second lieutenant by ripping the chevrons from his sleeves and sewing straps upon his shoulders. Jim Ashby, like most of the other recruits, wore a brown sack suit, designated as a uniform by a khaki arm band. The recruits also had uniform caps and had rifles and cartridge belts and bayonets. Battalions of five other Illinois regiments camped in Grant park, along the lake front of downtown Chicago—something over 5,000 men. There were as many more in Lincoln park; other regiments or battalions were in Jackson park. Altogether there were more than 20,000 militiamen and recruits drilling and conditioning themselves by day in Chicago parks while they waited for their equipment. At night different companies took turn guarding the vitals of the city. Jim had stood guard duty through two nights, with the rest of his company, at the electric plant which supplied most of the city with light and power.

As the bugles roused the camp now at midnight Jim supposed that it meant more riots, more attacks upon the power plants and the railroads. It was to be expected that the regent's people would be celebrating their sweep at sea. But the orders which followed the bugle call were different from any given before. Instead of taking only rifle, bayonet and ammunition and "doubling" down the boulevard toward the noise of the nearest fighting the order now was to break camp. Jim rolled his blanket and packed his scant equipment—canteen, knife, fork and spoon and toilet articles. After his first quick reaction to the call of the bugle he found himself very stiff and weary. Upon the afternoon he had returned from an eighteen hole round of golf and argued with Bob Wendell on the porch—and that was barely a week gone—he would have described himself as having been in perfect physical trim, fit for any test. But even thirty-six holes of golf in an afternoon—with a caddy carrying the clubs—was no preparation for carrying a rifle and 300 rounds of ammunition and a pack on a ten mile practice "hike" with the thermometer 93 in the shade and then digging a trench and later—like as not—standing guard with every tired muscle strained and every nerve tense, alert for sign of attack upon a power plant. The soreness in his left arm, where he had received the first hypodermic inoculation against typhoid, did not serve to make him more comfortable. But every one else about was as sore and stiff as he. No one complained.

"Mart," Jim hailed. "Mart, so here you are?"

"Where're we going, do you suppose—to camp about the gas works?"

"We're going east, they say!"

"East?"

"To New York!"

"We are! Then—the regent's begun landing his troops?"

"Transports off the east end of Long Island, they say."

Jim's soreness and weariness suddenly were gone. Instead a hot impulse of power and passion stirred through him. It was much more than a rejuvenation of the first excitement of the camp in Chicago and of carrying arms through the streets. The enemy of the United States was landing—or about to land—upon the shores of the country! He was being called, with the rest of his regiment, to oppose them!

"There's been big doings in Washington tonight. Have you heard?"

"Nothing much."

"Well, we may get it; we probably are going to; but they aren't to stick it to us for nothing like they did with the navy—poor devils."

Jim choked and swallowed. All the evening he had been thinking of Bob and Nellie. Was Bob killed, and did Nellie know it yet? "What's happened in Washington?" Jim asked.

"They say Stone's in absolute charge."

Some one else cut in eagerly. "And the president calls out a million more men tomorrow!"

"He don't call. He orders. They're going to draft by ages right away. No slackers here, if Stone's bossing!"

The bugle blew again. Bugles answered all about.

"Say, what was that call?"

"That was 'assembly.'"

"'Twas not. You fool, they don't blow assembly when they want"—

"Wel' that's 'boots and saddles' they're blowing over there in the Flist cavalry. I know that."

"Hey, sergeant!"

"We're to get in line, boys—over there; column fours!" the sergeant suggested optimistically.

The confusion in the camp became greater and greater. In the week's tireless, intensive drill Company F all raw recruits except the officers and sergeants and corporals who had been promoted from the Third militia regiment—had only passably mastered squad drill. "Form fours!" still brought recruits tripping and tumbling, passable platoon evolutions by daylight were still in the future, and now, in the dark of midnight, a whole battalion—four companies together—was expected to form and march to the railroad station and keep from getting mixed up with the other battalions of the Twentieth and with uncounted battalions of other regiments, not to speak of the troops of mounted men who were on the march at the same time. There was a great deal of swearing, and there was little light to let any one witness just how bad the formation was—and somehow the battalion got started.

"Some troupe traveling with us!" the man marching at Jim's right commented. He was Paddy Kilbane, erstwhile shipping clerk and star infielder. A scout for the Cubs had recommended him just before the Salem located the regent's fleet. If Kilbane was in place, Jim was not, but neither knew who was out of position. But the fact that "Swedy" Swenson marched just behind caused Jim to suspect that both himself and the Irishman belonged elsewhere. Swenson was a large, laconic man—until eight days earlier janitor of an apartment building—who possessed, as his reference which he brought with him stated, a passion for orderliness and precision.

Kilbane continued: "And they must be requiring us bad to start us up so this time of the night. Swedy, me bucko, 'tis a rifle ye're marching with not a mop, and ye're pokin' me shins. Put it over ye're shoulder like a ball bat; 'twill not drip on ye!"

"Excuse Mr Kilbane!" Swenson obliged. "That ben fire bell, hey?"

The battalion was leaving the park and turning into Michigan avenue; an order was shouted down the column; the clanging of a fire bell warned every one in time how to interpret the order. The battalion sprang to the side of the road and let the fire engine and truck race by. The sky ahead and also to the west was glaring red in districts where no factory chimneys should crimson the clouds, and distantly a shot and now a series of rifle shots echoed out of one of the side streets. A number of handbills were blowing down the boulevard; as they swirled under the street lamps they showed great, red letters. Jim Ashby and others of the soldiers stooped and picked up some of the papers. Jim read as he passed the next light:

"Fellow Citizens—Further resistance is useless. We are helpless! Let us make terms before the men of our army follow the men of the navy to death in useless slaughter!"

Kilbane read it at the same time and laughed. "So those are what they're plasterin' up everywhere!"

He jerked toward the windows of a shop which they were passing. A large placard was pasted there with the same red letters as the handbills. Other placards appeared on other windows, upon mail boxes pasted to the fronts of buildings and upon the doors. It was plain that the agents of the prince had had them printed before the great naval battle, ready to put up after the disaster.

Kilbane crumpled his bill and tossed it away. "'Tis too disheartening! Corporal, dear, will ye be keepin' a close watch on Swenson there? The enemy's advertisin' is makin' him melancholic. He's like to desert!"

Arriving at the station Company F followed Company E out on the platform beside the cars which had just been cleared of the refugees, the soldiers boarded the train, found seats, deposited rifles and packs, and—as the train would not be ready to start for some minutes—many of the men went out to the platforms again, watching other trains arriving from the east and other companies of recruits going to the cars.

Men wearing sabers and spurs—a cavalry troop—trumped by. Jim gazed at the hats of those who were in uniform and observed that they belonged to the First Illinois cavalry. They had led their horses aboard stock cars on freight tracks far down the yards and were returning to find places in the passenger trains.

A trooper, somewhat slighter and younger than the others, strolled proudly along, and Jim, as he saw him, felt his heart stop suddenly and then race faster. The boy turned more directly toward Jim and each recognized the other.

"Mart!" Jim hailed. "Mart! So here's where you are!"

The boy, at the first recognition, recoiled; then seeing avoidance of Jim was impossible, he approached swiftly.

"My name's Wallace!" he whispered in warning. "Wallace Scott!"

He looked about cautiously and plainly was disappointed that no one seemed to have noticed that Jim had hailed him by another name.

"You've enlisted!" Jim charged him. "Well, why don't you write home to tell them that, anyway? Of course, they've supposed you enlisted, but they're almost crazy, not hearing from you."

"I've written 'em—or mother anyway," Mart defended himself. "I mailed it just a minute ago. I was going to write her as soon as we got ordered out of Chicago. I'm not old enough to enlist, you know, but I'm big enough, so I had to come where no one knew me. My name's Wallace Scott, please remember, and I'm twenty years old, and I haven't got any parents or any one else. That's what I've told them, and I'll stick to it. I can ride pretty well, you know, so I got into the cavalry. What are you going to do about it?"

"You're going east, Mart?"

"I suppose so; we're here to take a train; that's all I know. I say, Jim!" Mart's hand now caught Jim's sleeve. "How are they at home? You've heard, of course."

"Yes. I've heard," Jim admitted. "At your house every one's well—except for worrying about you."

"Mother? And father?"

Mart had to be assured of both separately.

"And Agnes?"

"Yes; she's all right too."

"What's the matter, Jim?"

"Nothing."

"Say, what're you doing here, hey? I knew you'd enlisted, too, of course. You didn't stay back. But—well, Agnes hasn't come to yet? Is that it? She's still in a trance?"

"She's broken our engagement, if that's what you're getting at," Jim informed.

"Because you're going to fight! The little idiot. What do you care for?" Mart commented, younger brother like. "Then, you haven't been hearing from her? You've been hearing only from your house?"

"No, I've heard from Agnes too."

"I meant to ask, Jim. Anything about Bob Wendell?"

"No, nothing yet."

Connor shouted Jim's name; the engine at the front of the train blew a warning blast. Jim and Mart clasped hands.

THIS UMPIRE GOT COLD FEET

Charley Barrett, scout, tells this one and says it's new:

It was at a ball game 'n Waco between two negro teams. The umpire was a little "yaller nigger," weighing about 120 pounds. The player at bat was a mammoth black who had a bad reputation.

The dusky pitcher put one over the pan.

"One!" squeaked the umpire.

"Whut's dat? One what, nigger?" asked the batter savagely.

"One strike," answered the little yellow umpire in a scared whisper.

The pitcher put over another.

"Two!" squeaked the umpire.

The big black lifted his war-club, poised it over the head of the umpire and roared:

"What's dat? Two what?"

"Two, two—too high!" squeaked the little umpire as he turned and fled from the park.

ATHLETIC STARS TO SWEDEN.

Simpson, Murray, Meredith and Loomis to Exhibit Skill Abroad.

Frederick W. Rubien, secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic union, officially announced recently that he had definitely decided upon Robert Simpson of the University of Missouri and Fred Murray of San Francisco as the third and fourth members of the American team to accompany Ted Meredith and Jo Loomis abroad to compete in the games being arranged in Christiania, Norway; Copenhagen, Denmark, and Stockholm, Sweden, on Oct. 12, 14 and 21 respectively.

It was originally intended to send a distance runner as the third member of the team, but the only man eligible for this place was Jole Rey of Chicago, and it was impossible for him to go.

Both Simpson and Murray are good all around men. Simpson has broad jumped over twenty-three feet several times this year and has also equaled the world's record in the low hurdles. In addition to being a great hurdler, Murray is a crack sprinter and shot putter.

Loomis will be able to take care of the century and high jump and should also score points in the running broad jump and low hurdles. Murray, who has done 21 3-5 seconds for the 220 yard dash, should be able to win that event and the 220 yard low hurdles and should also score points in the shot and broad jump. Simpson will win the 120 yard hurdles and running broad jump and ought to score points in the 220 yard low hurdles and sprints. Meredith will take care of the quarter and half mile runs, and the four together will make an almost unbeatable combination in a half mile relay, each running 220 yards.

Happiness is a bird we pursue our life long without catching it.—Virey.

Baker Is Best All Around Third Baseman, Says Donovan

MANAGER BILL DONOVAN of the New York Americans says that he considers J. Franklin Baker the best all around third baseman in the American league. "He may not be as graceful as some others, but he more than makes up for this by his steady all around work," says Bill. "Baker can cover as much ground as any other man in the position, and as for pegging and pegging accurately no man has anything on him. He can also block the runner as cleverly as the next, and as a batter he is in a class by himself," explains the Yankee leader.

LOCAL PRINTERS PLAY THE HOST TO UNIONTOWN

Delightful Get Together Session is Held in Moose Hall

A REUNION OF OLD TIMERS

Reminiscences of the Early Days a Feature of the Evening: Closer Fellowship Between Two Chapels of Typographical Union is the Aim.

Connellsville members of the International Typographical Union played the host to those of the Uniontown chapel Saturday night when a smoker was held in the Moose Hall. The meeting was presided over by Charles B. McCormick of the Connellsville union. C. S. Bryner, president of the Uniontown union, responded to the formal address of welcome from the chair. Guests included members of the pressmen's union, representatives of the business and editorial departments of the Connellsville newspapers, T. S. Gorley, one of the oldest printers and newspaper men in the county, and Hugh Gorley, a former printer and now warden of the county jail.

Elaborate refreshments were served at the conclusion of the gabfest. It was a delightful gathering, and apparently the Uniontown visitors enjoyed themselves, as most of them waited for the last car before going home.

Short talks were made by about everybody present, including William Ache of Uniontown, who was the first president of the Connellsville union. Especially interesting were the chats concerning the early struggles of the Fayette county printers, both to organize and to obtain better working conditions.

"Ticky" Gorley, for many years business manager of the Uniontown News Standard and before that a printer by trade; Hugh Gorley, the jail warden; James J. Driscoll, business manager, and George S. Connell, city editor, of The Courier, were called on for speeches and responded, while the principal address of the evening was that of John B. Cooley, veteran of The Courier's staff of printers, who gave "My Personal Recollections of 43 Years as a Printer." It savored of Mark Twain, O. Henry and other humorists. Mr. Cooley told of beginning his career as a typesetter at the munificent sum of $1.50 a week, and of the trials and tribulations of the printers of the 70's, and especially delineated his hearers by relating the various ways in which printers obtained their spending money in those days when the ghost failed to walk with any degree of regularity.

The concluding speech of the evening was by B. W. Ellis of The Courier's linotype staff, who told what the printers stand for, why they should get it, and how to find the way to the refreshment stand. The last suggestion brought a unanimous response.

It is said that other smokers are to be held in the future. The guests hope so.

Those attending from Uniontown were T. S. Gorley, H. A. Gerley, Walter Springer, A. K. Hilling, Dave Miller, Jack Chacola, C. S. Bryner, T. S. Dierer, Girard Bean, William Ache, Daniel Neiffer, John Ontotko, Ralph Rosa, Charles H. Reynolds, Edward Hathaway and Lawrence Heinerman.

The entertainment committee was composed of B. W. Ellis, A. H. Shaffer, Harry C. Sliger and Roy Miller.

A Wonderful Display of Correct Fall Apparel

To assemble such a complete display is no small task, for as the new things arrive, they find many waiting to receive them, and they are gone before we have time to really get acquainted with them. And it has been especially difficult this year, with merchandise so difficult to obtain. But by great effort, we have collected from the most important manufacturers the newest creations, including apparel that is the very last word in designing. As is customary with this store, popular prices predominate.

THE SUITS

We Doubt if Better Styles or Qualities are Manufactured to Sell for $15

To combine the best in style and the best in quality at a low price is not always an easy task, yet we have accomplished it with marked success in these new Fall models.

Full-belted and half-belt effects in charming shades of brown and blue, and in the ever-popular black.

Velvet Collars are a decided feature, and they may be worn either high or low. Braid and buttons are used for trimming.

Coats are either full or caught in at the waist, giving the popular flare effect. Poplin and serge are the materials.

All sizes for ladies and misses.

Other Styles to Sell for $19.75, $25 and up to $65

Wool Velours, Velvets, Whipcord, Gabardines, Serges, Broadcloths, Poplins and Checks. One coat will be full-flowing; the next will be pinched in at the waist.

Fur, of course, is the favorite trimming, such well-liked skins as beaver, Hudson seal and skunk being used. When fur is not used, velvet.

Every skirt has large pockets.

Colors are brown, green, purple, wistaria, French blue, navy blue and black.

All sizes for ladies, misses and juniors, 14 to 46, including stouts

THE DRESSES

Approved Styles and Materials at $6.50, $10, $12.50, $15 and up to $49.75

With all indications pointing toward this being a great dress season, it is interesting to note the new styles tendencies. First of all, is noticed an unprecedented fullness in practically ever model. Then new materials and treatments for trimming command the attention.

The silk dresses are once more designed in Chiffon, Satin, Georgette Crepe, Taffeta, Charmeuse, Chiffon Taffeta, and various attractive combinations of these.

Nearly all have large pockets—a characteristic borrowed from the English soldier and very popular. Sleeves, almost without exception, are long.

Grey, brown, green, purple, French blue and navy are the colors.

Serge Dresses a Sensation at $6.50 to $29.75

"Serge," "Serge"—everywhere "Serge" is being called for. To meet this unusual demand, we have procured a liberal selection of becoming new models trimmed with beads, and the new wool embroidery.

See these without fail.

Just Received a Large Shipment of Silk Petticoats, In All Colors and Sizes.

Fall Coats are Noted for Their Graceful Utility

$10, $12.50, $15, $19.75, $25 and up to $49.75

Fashion has smiled upon the new coats. She has been gracious enough to insist that coats shall be large and full, and hang from the shoulders, giving most graceful lines and cozy warmth. Large pockets are a characteristic of these as well as of the dresses.

Never, we think, could one choose from so many pretty and serviceable materials—all of them correct. It may be Plush, Furlex, Baffin Seal, Ural Lamb, Esquimette; or again it may be Broadcloth, Velour, Zibeline, Velvet, Bollvia Cloth or Fancy Mixtures.

Collars, as a rule, are large and may be worn high or low. Many are of fur—or banded with fur—bands also appearing at the cuffs to carry out the effect. Some have belts, and some do not.

Almost as many colors as there are different materials. One sees plum, Burgundy, gold, brown, green, black and fancy mixtures.

All sizes are included.

$10

At this price, we are showing an exceptionally excellent lot of coats in both fancy mixtures and plain colors. A majority of them trimmed with fabric fur. All sizes up as 42.

Extraordinary values for the money.

Style and Comfort in Fall Sweaters

From a mere bulky, cumbersome protection against the cold, the sweater has slowly but surely evolved, until today, in point of style, it stands on an equal footing with the other articles of outer apparel.

For Fall 1916, we have three weaves—The "Shetland" or light weight; the "Shaker" or medium heavy; and the "Jumbo" or very heavy.

There are full-belt, half-belt and sash belt effects in the whole range of colors, the newest of which are gold, plum and Burgundy.

Sizes for children are $1.00 to $3.50.

Sizes for ladies are $2.50, $3.50, $4.00 to $10.00.

Knitted Scarfs and Sets to Match, $1.50 the Set.

FALL SILK DISPLAY

Wednesday—Thursday—Friday

WE HAVE JUST brought in our glowing new Satins, our sheer Crepes and Voiles, our Chiffon Taffetas, and a wonderful collection of Novelty Silks—and they are opened up and ready for Fall display in the Dry Goods Section.

Qualities Are of the Highest for We Admit No Unworthy Silks.

Prices, in view of the many increased charges to which the market has been subjected, are very moderate.

Materials for dresses, blouses and trimmings, and many other new silks are here.

Rich Imported Metal and Beaded Trimmings, Laces and Fur Trimmings Will be Included.

A New Beauty in the Fall Waists

Gone entirely is that primness and plain severity of past seasons. In its place is seen a new softness in draping, a new beauty in treatment of collars and cuffs that, is altogether charming. While frills add a smartness all their own.

Some styles are best expressed in Georgette Crepe or Crepe de Chine, while others require Chiffon or Voile, and yet a third class demand Plaid Silks or combinations of Plaid Silk and Chiffon. Printed Chiffons have an attraction all their own. The way these have been selling augurs well for their popularity.

The strongest showing of Waists in the city at $1.00.

Dressier models at $1.75, $2.50, $3.00, $3.75, $4.50, $5, and up to $13.50.
